

STRIKE CONTAGION IN EAST SIDE AIR.

All the Clothing Trades of That Section May Catch the Fever.

One Thousand More Tailors and Six Hundred Women Desert Their Shops.

The Latter March to Wallalla Hall in Holiday Attire, Cheered by the Crowd.

CONTRACTORS TO MEET TO-MORROW.

It is Believed They Will Close Their Establishments to Non-Union Men, Exposing the Cause of the Revolt.

The big strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors is now likely to develop in a gigantic upheaval in all the East Side clothing trades.

certain what our demands will be. They requested me not to give their names to the public at present. We have engaged ex-ecutive District Attorney Thomas Bradley to draw up our demands in legal form. They will then be presented to the union for ratification.

The Contractors' Association made a new move in the afternoon. Its members resolved themselves into committees, which visited all the shops that have not closed and requested the proprietors to join in the movement to compel the manufacturers to pay higher prices. Many of the shops closed in the afternoon.

An official bulletin issued yesterday said, among other things:

Agreements are now being drawn up and will be presented to the contractors within a few days. All the women are on strike, and will meet on Friday evening at Wallalla Hall. Members are notified to preserve order by all means. Fellow workers, have courage. We have won every fight so far, though through the fault of our members the fruits of our victory have been lost to a large extent. This time we fight to maintain what we have gained.

CONTRACTORS TO MEET.

The contractors held no regular meeting yesterday, but will hold a mass meeting in Roberts Hall, No. 200 East Broadway, to-morrow afternoon. It is believed their action will be the closing of their shops to non-union men and openly espousing the fight of the tailors.

Albert H. Hochstetler, president of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association, made the following statement yesterday:

"It is not true that the manufacturers have been withholding supplies. The supplies are not in existence, as there is little demand for goods this season. I pity the tailors. They get the worst of the situation, but we all have to suffer this year. I do not know whether any manufacturers have called on the strike leaders. I have heard nothing of it."

These statements were made by two leaders yesterday.

In Her Suit the Skirt Dancer Says She Was Married in Albany—A Friend Recalls a Midnight Performance in a Flat Here.

Lionel E. Lawrence is an "actor-manager" just like David Belasco or Henry Irving or Beerbaum Tree, only in a less exalted sphere. And, if the charges made by his pretty wife, Elizabeth Lawrence, better known as Dorothy Drew, the skirt dancer, are true, he is a bigamist.

Mrs. Lawrence, through her attorney, John W. Brainin, of No. 233 Broadway, about a month ago filed a bill for divorce

HOPE BOOTH'S TIGHTS EXHIBITED IN COURT.

They Were in a Box and Magistrate Deuel Tested Their Thickness.

Policeman Testified That Her Roof Garden Appearance in Them Was Shocking.

SHE AND HAMILTON HELD FOR TRIAL.

Not a Bit Naughty, the Actress Said, or Her Husband Would Have Objected to the Performance.

Those persons who had a faint expectation of seeing Miss Hope Booth demonstrate to Magistrate Deuel, in Jefferson Market Court, yesterday afternoon, just how she looked in her pose at the American Roof Garden Theatre to incur arrest for immorality were sorely disappointed.

They saw the young woman, it is true, and they saw her beautiful figure, but they saw her in a box, four by six inches in dimensions.

All the posing done by the arrested figure in court was an exhibition with the bespangled cloak to show how much of her form was exposed, and the only bit of sensation afforded was the description given by Acting Police Inspector Harley, whose duty it was to describe the appearance of the defendant in the Latin Quarter, that he had Manager John W. Hamilton and the actress placed under arrest.

Miss Booth and Manager "Jack" Hamilton entered the courtroom at 3 p. m. Miss Booth was a pretty figure, but it is rather short. Her hair is black, and so are her eyes. The eyes are big and expressive, and when she looked archly at Magistrate Deuel she shifted uneasily in his chair, and felt the tightness of her corset.

The fair defendant wore a dainty waist of black velvet in garnet, black and white, trimmed with white and black lace, a black satin skirt, a golden girdle, all topped with black lace, and with many plumes. She carried a gold chain, and a blue pocket-book with gold trimmings.

During a part of the policeman's testimony she used the vivacious language and occasionally ejaculated, "How shocking!" Maurice Meyer for the defendants, asked Harley about his knowledge of the pictures. He had never seen any. "I have seen a picture of Eve," he said, "leaving the Garden of Paradise with the serpent. Wasn't the fashion for women to wear more clothes than she did in those times?" he explained.

Sergeant Russell's eyes twinkled as he described what he had seen. Acting Captain Weisinger smiled when he looked at the pretty defendant and identified her as the person who had posed. He corroborated the evidence of the other two. Her tightness were then put in evidence, but Mr. Meyer said they must be returned, as Miss Booth had no others and needed them in her business.

In her defence, Miss Booth said she is twenty-three years old and has been on the stage nine years. She was married seven months ago, she averred. She denied in the least that she gave an immoral exhibition. She said her husband was a doctor, and she was usually worn, and that it was possible for her to have exposed herself to the extent that Harley needed to know. She swore she had, and said that her husband would not have allowed her to do so, even if she herself had been willing.

Manager Hamilton said that if he had had any idea the performance was improper he should not have put it on. Robert Frazier, who staged the pantomime, said that instead of being very tight, as the police said, Miss Booth's tightness did not fit her very well.

Magistrate Deuel said he believed that the charges against the couple were true, and that the limitations of the statute and held the prisoners for trial in Special Sessions, holding them in the custody of the sheriff until to-morrow, when he will fix bail.

IF NOT ZOLA—WHO?

Is It Gaboriau, Our Own Laura Jean Libbey or Paul Getz Who Has Been Paid Twice Their Price in Gold to Write the Book, "When Lovely Maiden Stoops to Folly?"

The crowds about the newsstands on Broadway yesterday eager to see the book, "When Lovely Maiden Stoops to Folly," were so great that it took an extra force of policemen to clear the streets for pedestrians. Never has a book appeared in New York which has caused such a widespread sensation. The critics of some of the leading papers sent down for copies to review it for the public's benefit, but were met with courteous refusal by the publisher. "A book which is selling like wildfire in New York is the best evidence the public could have," he answered. "The great trouble is," said one critic, commenting on the novel, "many a woman who reads the story will try to take a like course upon the lover who refuses to marry her."

By the way, there's a world of truth in the words, "Hail, hail, our 'fry' like a woman scorned!" and it is equally true:

"When lovely maiden stoops to folly, And finds, alas! that men betray, What fools men make of us, and how, What means can wash the sin away."
